- “A building or structure shall not be occupied prior to the fire code official issuing approval and conducting associated inspections indicating the applicable provisions of the International Fire Code have been met.” (IFC Section 105.3.3)

During construction, renovation or remodel of new and existing buildings, the only items that are allowed in the building are those considered to be “equipment and fixtures” as defined in the International Existing Building Code Section 202.

Furniture or any loose furnishings thereof are considered to be occupying a space and are prohibited as per Section 105.3.3.

- A conditional permit to move furniture items or related furnishings into a building or structure prior to completion of a project and final approval may be considered on a case by case basis with Fire Marshal and Building Official approval (Section 105.3.4).
